

of it is not. Museum learning is often "object-centered" and activity centered," but visitors also perceive and remember the other facets of a museum experience including the rich social, physical and personal contexts.

Museum learning provides opportunities for active learning and provides for multiple points of entry into the learning experience. Because a museum visit may offer varied experiences, including the potential for discovery learning and for self-directed and self-paced inquiry, museums may provide learning experiences for a variety of learners with differing characteristics, needs expectations and learning styles.

Although museum learning experiences include formal, nonformal and informal modes, they often differ from or transcend the typical offerings of formal, sequential instruction tied to specified goals with clearly identified populations which are found in other educational organizations.

AVAILABLE FUNDS: An award(s) is expected to be no greater than $1,000,000 and may be less, depending on the availability of funds and the quality of proposals.
